Dr. Jasen Rowles still holds the home-run record at his hometown high school. He played college ball, and even had a tryout with a professional baseball team.

The energy, dedication, and talent that led to his success in sports is now devoted to the practice of Family Medicine. And the fact that he's chosen to practice here is a home run for our community.

After earning a degree in Biology at Pennsylvania's Bloomsburg University, he graduated from the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine, and filled a Residency at St. Luke's Hospital in Allentown, Pennsylvania.

Then, it was back home to Clearfield, Pennsylvania (he grew up in nearby Turkey Hill) where he built up a successful Family Practice, getting to know each of his patients inside and out and top to bottom—which is what he likes about being a Family Doctor.

We're pleased to welcome Dr. Rowles and his family to our community. We think he'll be a big hit with his patients.
